Nixon bugs deactivated

WASHINGTON (AP) — A two-year-old system for recording President Nixon's meetings and phone conversations has been de-activated, informed officials said Saturday.

The sources said the automatic recording devices were turned off because the system had been compromised by testimony last Monday by former White House aide Alexander Butterfield, who disclosed its existence during an appearance before the Senate Watergate committee.

The sources indicated the White House decided that some people might be inhibited in talking to Nixon if they felt their words were being recorded.

The Baltimore Sun and Chicago Tribune quoted sources as saying that the equipment would be removed after being deactivated.

Former White House aide Gordon Strachan admitted Friday destroying documents about political intelligence, but denied knowing about the Watergate wiretapping in advance or participating in a cover-up.

His testimony, already in conflict with that of former campaign deputy Jeb Stuart Magruder and ousted White House counsel John W. Dean III, will face stiff testing by the Senate Watergate committee when the televised hearings resume Monday.

Strachan read a 15-page-statement at the end of Friday's session but answered no questions. He attacked Magruder's testimony on several counts and denied ever telling Dean that he had destroyed wiretap logs.

Besides his denials of personal involvement, Strachan offered some new evidence implicating Haldeman in the coverup. He said he told Haldeman long before the wiretapping that the Nixon campaign committee was running a $300,000 "sophisticated political intelligence gathering system," and that two or three days after the break-in he showed Haldeman an old memorandum dealing with the operation.

"After speaking to him, I destroyed that memo," Strachan said. He also destroyed other documents including a sample intelligence report entitled Sedan Chair II, which Strachan said he later found to be the code name for an informer inside Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey's, D-Minn., presidential campaign, and not, as he suspected, related to the Watergate wiretaps.

Committee sources say Strachan is prepared to say, when questioned, that he destroyed the documents on Haldeman's orders.

Dean testified that Strachan told him soon after the break-in that Haldeman ordered him to destroy documents including some relating to electronic surveillance. Strachan denied telling Dean he got rid of wiretap logs, and said he had only suspected, incorrectly, that what he was doing away with were wiretap papers.

Additional aid designated

Scott and Stoddard Counties are among seven Southeast Missouri counties President Richard Nixon has designated as eligible for additional federal disaster aid due to spring flooding.

In addition to Scott and Stoddard counties, Cape Girardeau, Perry, Bollinger and Wayne counties are eligible due for damages received in the Memorial Day flash flood. Ripley County was included because of spring flooding of the Current River.

Flood victims will be eligible for five per cent loans and no forgiveness, except for those in Ripley County who are eligible for one per cent loans and $5,000 forgiveness.

Funds released

An initial $7,000 has been allocated by the United States Department of Agriculture for emergency conservation work to repair flood damage for Mississippi County farmers, according to George Roberts, executive director of the Mississippi County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service officce, who said the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation county committee has been assured that additional funds will be made available.

This money can be used for removing debris from farm land, restoring conservation structures, restoration of ditches, grading, shaping and releveling of ground.

New Madrid County ASCS executive director Larry Blunt said the county has been allocated $2,900, with a promise of additional money.

Blunt said farmers must complete their work before they get paid the 80 per cent of costs needed for emergency conservation work. The work must be directly related to the spring flooding, he added.

No definite allocation has been announced for Scott County, according to Kenneth Vowels, director of the Scott County ASCS office.

Although Stoddard County has been allocated no money for flood damage yet, the matter has been taken under consideration by the Department of Agriculture, according to executive director Ed Pullum.

Applications from Mississippi, Scott and New Madrid county farmers for conservation practices must be made by July 31 at the County ASC offices.

Youth arrested in drug case

Police arrested James Helms Jr., 20, of Route One, Box 411, early this morning for marijuana possession after he was seen trying to dispose of what police believe are two bags of marijuana.

Police said they were clearing out the parking lot at Park- A- Lot Drive Inn on East Malone Avenue about 1:30 a.m. when they allegedly saw Helms put the bags under a car.

Helms left and a short time later returned. He was then arrested by Cpl. Walter Wilson.

Prosecuting Attorney Jim Moore said marijuana possession charges would probably be filed today against Helms, but no charges had been filed by noon.

Other arrests announced today include Robert Copenhaver, 26, of 740 Smith St., for peace disturbance and Cecil Wayne Carter, 23, of Route Three for assault and battery.

SBA sets July 31 deadline

Area flood victims are urged to contact a local Small Business Administration disaster office before July 31 if they have questions regarding eligibility or authorizations previously issued approving requested loans, according to an announcement from Boyd Corder, manager of the SBA Eastern Missouri disaster office in Maryland Heights.

Interested persons may apply today and July 28 from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Sikeston Activity Center, 201 S. Kingshighway.

Loan increases must be requested in cases where the borrower has learned that more money will be required for additional damages discovered during authorized repairs. Provisions for increased costs of such repairs may be made if originally beyond the control of the borrower.

No increases are allowable for additional personal property loss after the expiration of the filing period July 31, and increases are not allowed after that date for real property damage that was reasonably apparent and for which a victim did not request in his application.

Corder said, "Each application is considered on an individual basis and if the applicant has a question, he should contact Lahoma Dennis (ombudsman at the St. Louis branch disaster office, telephone number *878- 0940).

CONVICT THE GUILTY

If, as it has happened in recent days, the rights of the innocent have been violated in the process of apprehending the guilty, it can also be said that the innocent have been victimized by failure of the courts to punish the guilty.

Former President of San Francisco State College, Dr. S. I. Hayakawa, calls attention to the decision of the California Supreme Court to overturn the conviction of 12 persons who had been found guilty, in the lower courts, of unlawful assembly and disturbing the peace.

Dr. Hayakawa points to events leading to the arrests and convictions. For over three years, a small band of militant radicals had kept the campus of S. F. State College in turmoil. Two Presidents of the college were literally driven out of office, in rapid succession. There were countless incidents of classroom invasion, trashing, assault, destruction of property and incendiary fires. Students and professors were harrassed and intimidated.

On January 23, 1969, the radicals announced their purpose to close the college entirely. There were calls for assassination of college officials, a bomb explosion seriously injured a campus policeman, and a mob gathered. Arrests were made, and more than half proved not to be registered students. Subsequently, as shown by the record, a number of them were found guilty as charged. Now, however, four years after the event, the soft- on- criminals California Supreme Court has reversed the convictions.

Comments Dr. Hayakawa: "People have a right to be protected in the performance of their lawful activities -- whether retailing or golfing or studying in a university. It is a right that the California Supreme Court does not appear to have recognized."

ALAS, POOR RABBIT HASH --

A few years ago, you would tell the hour of the day a letter was canceled by looking at the postmark. Then, no doubt in the interests of efficiency, the Post Office started using merely AM and PM.

Today, you're lucky if you can make out the date or even the city of origin. A legible postmark is apparently one of those dreams that are beyond the reach of man's inventive genius.

Not that it will matter much longer. In another move to increase efficiency, the U. S. Postal Service, successor to the Post Office, is in the process of eliminating all town and city names from its postmarks, save for a few of the largest ones.

The reason is that the service is installing automated sorting and canceling equipment in 357 "Area Mail Processing Centers" around the country. To utilize the automated equipment most efficiently, a large volume of mail is required.

Thus letters from smaller post offices will be trucked to the nearest AMPC where they will be postmarked merely with the date, state abbreviation and first three numbers of the area Zip Code.

Postmark buffs are up in arms about the whole thing.

It seems that there is a subspecies of philatelist who collects not postage stamps but postmarks — not just any old postmarks but those with interesting names like Pure Air, Mo., or Rabbit Hash, Ky. They don't just collect them, but sell them and trade them and even hold annual conventions.

"These machines," laments one, "are taking all the romance out of postmarks."

Alas, the postmark bids fair to go the same route as the telephone exchange name. Remember the valiant but hopeless battle against all- number dialing?

The demise of the local postmark wouldn't be so bad if it weren't for the sneaking suspicion that this is going to be another of those "successful" operations on the postal system from which the patient will emerge sicker than ever.

NEW METHOD SAVES ENERGY IN MAKING PRIMARY ALUMINUM

Aluminum Company of America disclosed it has applied for patents on the Alcoa Smelting Process, a new electrolytic method of producing primary aluminum. The new process is expected to reduce by as much as 30 per cent the electricity required by the most efficient units of the Hall process presently used worldwide.

John D. Harper, Alcoa's chairman, said, "We have invested approximatey $25 million in developing the Alcoa smelting process, the most promising alternate to the Hall process we could discover.

"If the first unit performs as we expect and hope, and if subsequent full commercial operation confirms this," Mr. Harper said, "We believe future Alcoa smelters would be built to use the Alcoa smelting process."

In the Alcoa smelting process alumina is combined with chlorine in a reactor unit which chemically converts the oxide to aluminum chloride. The chloride is electrolytically processed in a completely enclosed cell which separates the compound into molten aluminum and chlorine. The latter is continuously recycled back to the reactor in a closed loop.

Alcoa's chief executive officer said the new process uses a system free of undesirable emissions and affords a superior employee working enviornment. In addition to requiring less energy, the process is more tolerant of power interruptions than is the Hall process, and can accept power reductions during daily periods of peak demand by the public. Its total operating costs are expected to be lower. It also will permit plants to be located on smaller sites, with greater location flexibility, he added.

CONSISTENT DEDICATION

For a number of years, the U. S. prescription drug industry has felt compelled to take issue with what many drug industry leaders have believed to be inaccurate investigative findings and statements pertaining to virtually all phases of the ethical drug industry's operations. As a consequence, the relationship between the drug industry and government is widely throught of as "adversary". This is an error.

For example, a bill has been introduced in Congress requring registration of drugs of all types — prescription, over- the- counter, "new" and "not new" antibiotics. It is a far - reaching, regulatory measure, and it is expected to be supported by the drug industry. Many drug industry spokesmen have noted the difficulty the Food and Drug Administration has encountered in carrying out regulatory tasks assigned to it. According to a release of the Pharmaceutical Manufacturers Association, which comments on the proposed drug registration bill, "FDA and the drug industry are on record as recognizing that FDA cannot adequately perform its assigned enforcement mission without knowledge of exactly what drugs are on the market. Consequently, the bill ... is expected to be actively supported by both government and drug manufacturers."

The action of the drug industry, in this case, should serve as a reminder that in all matters concerning prescription drugs, the industry is impelled by the principal motive on which its existence rests. That motive is the development and mass production of compounds that will make life healthier and longer. If additional regulation serves this cause, the industry will be found on the side of more regulation.

THE SPARK OF PROGRESS

There have always been a few among us-- the inventors-- who have been capable, not only of recognizing the need for something better, but of drawing upon their knowledge and creativity to produce, often after years of dedicated effort, a device or whole new technology to fill that need. The U.S. patent system has been the bulwark of protection for these creators of new things. By granting them an exclusive right to use their inventions for 17 years, the system has encouraged early disclosure of patentable inventions, virtually eliminated the concealment of technological advances and provided incentive for commercial development of inventions and their introduction on as broad a scale as possible in the marketplace.

In recent years, the patent system, which has served us so well, has been weakened materially by congressional action, antitrust activity and adverse court decisions. In 1966, a congressionally-appointed commission recommended legislative clarification of patent rights. Although a proposal was introduced in the 92nd Congress, no action was completed. As time passes, the urgency of strengthening the patent system increases. The U.S. balance of trade deficit ran at an annual rate of $7 billion in 1972 as compared with $2.7 billion in 1971--- the first such trade deficit since 1893. The fundamental weakness in our trade position is the fact that we are losing out as the world's number one supplier of high- technology products. This situation must be corrected if the U.S. is to continue to import essential supplies of oil, natural gas and raw materials from other nations.

Throughout our history, the patent system has sparked the creation of new products and better uses for old ones--- not to mention the formation of whole new industries employing millions of people. It has given impetus to our development from a frontier agricultural society to the greatest industrial power on Earth. The human qualities of innovation and creativity were never more crucial to the progress and even the survival of the United States. It is time steps were taken to make certain that these qualities are protected and encouraged.

EDUCATION NEEDS MODERN MANAGEMENT

Independent research by the Rand Corporation has disclosed that simply increasing expenditures on traditional educational practices is not likely to improve the educational product substantially. Furthermore, this research indicated an opportunity for significant reduction or redirection of educational expenditures without hurting the students.

While the findings of this study may not apply locally, they do emphasize that expenditures alone are not the measure of quality education and that equalization of funds does not necessarily assure equal educational opportunity.

The financing and control of public school education should continue to be the responsibility of the state and local school districts. When federal assistance is given, it should be provided only to meet clearly demonstrated needs.

Educators should be encouraged to apply modern management methods, including a clear precise statement of educational objectives to be achieved by the students. Then the parents and the public will know how the school system is performing.

PERIL POINT

Those who can recall the grim days of World War II, when the U.S. faced a disastrous rubber shortage following enemy seizure of overseas rubber producing areas, can fully understand the implications today of growing U.S. dependence on foreign oil imports. Oil is literally the lifeblood of our energy- based society.

A pamphlet issued by the Independent Petroleum Association of America has urged President Nixon to establish what it calls a "peril point" for U.S. dependence on foreign oil. This means limiting U.S. dependence on foreign oil to a level that would be considered acceptable to protect the consuming public and national security. The need for establishing a petroleum import "peril point" is emphasized in the pamphlet. It states, "The nation clearly could not maintain a position of strength or world leadership should it become primarily dependent on unstable or hostile areas of the world for basic energy supplies. Yet the nation is headed unnecessarily toward such dependence, for both oil and natural gas which supply 75 per cent of its energy resources, if declines in U.S. exploration and development which have persisted since the mid- 1950's are not reversed."

Many leading authorities in the oil industry, in public life and elsewhere have been most vehement in urging adoption of a "national oil policy" that will furnish the incentive for intensified development of domestic petroleum reserves--- before we are forced to submit to international blackmail in the form of "oil diplomacy".

IT'S THE TRUTH

The word "echo" comes from the mythological tale of the nymph of that name who, loving Narcissus in vain, wasted away until there was nothing left but her voice.

The highest waterfall in the world is the Angel, on a tributary of the Caroni River in Venezueal— 3,281 feet. Our Niagara Falls is 167 feet high.

John Adams, our second president, and Thomas Jefferson, our third, both died on the same day, July 4, 1826— the 50th anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence, which, of course, they both had signed.

The expression "Robbing Peter to Pay Paul" is said to have originated as follows: About the year 1640 the Abbey Church of St. Peter, London, was made a cathedral; a decade later it became part of the diocese of London and much of its property was taken over by St. Paul's Cathedral. Someone writing at the time implied it was not right to rob St. Peter's altar to build one for St. Paul's Cathedral.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Intrigue of the Battle of Phas Four ...

WASHINGTON -- This may not be literature's suavest pun but it's getting a chuckle in the highest of circles: "What ," asks a chap, "was the diagnosis of the President's illness?" Reply: "He had a 'staff' infection."

But there are those who've been immune to the waterborne bug --- especially the 52-year-old, 190-pound, 6-foot ex-Marine George shultz, whom I think of as deputy President--- though many have written his political obituary.

It is Treasury Secretary Shultz, who saw Mr. Nixon in the hospital at least thrice for long periods, who now will run the overheated American economy, attempt to deflate its prices and, regardless of what you hear, try his robust best to wipe out virtually all controls by year's end. Sort of get us out of Phase Four's clenches by Christmas.

It hasn't been easy to win the besieged and harassed President over to a policy of an implied deadline for phasing out controls. Shultz isn't calendar- minded. But he wants the nation rid of economic clamps by 1974. For that, the political cosmetic practitioners have tried to cut him down.

Here evolves an inside- White House drama which has gone untold. On May 30, President Nixon told his economic people--- including Shultz, of course--- that he wanted specific options, sound advice, on bursting inflation.

"What do we do to tighten up?" he asked.

The task of pulling all options together was handed to Herb Stein, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers. There were many options.

And despite concentrated reports from this hyperthyroid city of a feud between Shultz and Connally, they actually agreed on a soft approach, a phasing- out of controls. They agreed that American business can run itself better than the government can. They agreed that, though labor had been winning an average of some 8 per cent wage increases, the unions, for the moment, were holding the line.

Thus they were agreed on the first of three options which were pulled together between June 2 and 5 by Herb Stein's group. The first was a soft approach: explain the President's economic policies vigorously and take some steps to activate Phase Three (big stick out of the closet) "actively and visibly." Second option: Stiffen Phase Three; impose mandatory price controls on large "Tier One" firms (major corporations)' Third option: use a hard approach; put on a temporary freeze and follow it with a tough, more durable program.

These were handed to the President about June 5. Shultz and Connally appeared to have won their point. Then Shultz flew off to Paris for international monetary talks.

June 6: Enter Melvin Laird, new Counsellor to the President for Domestic Affairs.

He disagreed with Shultz, Cost of Living Council czar John Dunlop and John Connally. Laird said, in effect: Mr. President, you can't do this. Everybody is screaming. Congress wants action. Decisiveness is just the medicine now. Get tough.

The President listened. He agreed. Warnings were telephoned to Shultz by friends en route. He barely left the French airport. There were some conversations there and he jetted back. But it was too late. The President had decided on the freeze--- the third option. It was nigh disastrous.

The President not only lost the battle of Phase Three- and-a- Half. He almost neutralized Shultz--- and John Connally went home. Not pouting. Just mad at Laird and what the economists call the political "cosmeticologists."

So Shultz, Dunlop and company went back to work. They conferred and conferred. Not in those advertised public sessions but in smaller, quieter groups. One of the first to say the hell with controls was labor chief George Meany. This was followed by other union leaders and business executives.

The technicians worked out Phase Four so it could work itself right out of existence.

So on the morning of July 18, labor chief- of- chiefs Meany was the first to be visited by Shultz who arrived at the AFL-- CIO leader's eighth floor office at 9:15. For about a half hour, Shultz, still the one administration man who has labor's confidence, briefed Meany. Later Shultz got to Teamsters union president Frank "Fitz" Fitzsimmons and auto workers leaded Leonard Woodcock by phone.

Thus Shultz kept open the White House- House of Labor line of communications. Labor Secretary Brennan can't. As recently as July 10, Meany wasn't talking to Pete when they met at an organizational session of the key Presidential Commission on Industrial Peace, headed by the solomonic David Cole.

So there now is evidence the President feels about Shultz as he has since the very earliest days of the first Cabinet meetings. I know. I've discussed this with President Nixon who has enormous confidence in the professor.

And I discussed these matters over the Camp David and White House telephones. It's nice to know I was making oral history.

On the basis of those conversations and as an inveterate Shultz watcher, and because the people of this nation, their pocketbooks and sense of security are in his hands, it should and must be said that he sees Phase Four as the way out of controls, but will enforce it for the duration. He will not jump any deadlines. His whole purpose is to get out of them, not mire more deeply in them.

If anybody can do it, the free market economist George Shultz can--- if anybody can do it.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

JACK ANDERSON SAYS:

Report KY Financed Campaign By Trafficking in Narcotics

WASHINGTON-- A startling intelligence report, dated July 19, 1971, and stamped "Secret/Sensitive," Suggests that South Vietnam's former Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky may have financed his 1971 presidential campaign by smuggling narcotics.

"It is said that Ky has to raise 500 million Vietnamese piastres for his campaign and intends to do it through the narcotics traffic," declares the intelligence report.

It was addressed to Harold F. Smith, then the assistant customs commissioner in charge of investigations, who told us he remembered the charge against Ky but described it as "a flophouse rumor that was never tied down."

The secret report tells of meetings between the flamboyant Ky and two Air Vietnam pilots. "These meetings are not considered coincidental," states the report, "as they follow the same pattern as the Air Vietnam opium traffic pattern in 1963 from Vientiane, Laos."

Footnote: We were unable to reach Ky, but an intermediary denied that the former South Vietnamese leader was involved in the narcotics traffic. He was eventually maneuvered out of the presidential race in August 1971 by President Thieu.

PIPELINE POSTSCRIPT: The thunderclap of Watergate revelations this week drowned out the sounds of the most extensive arm- twisting campaign seen on Capitol Hill since the fight over the SST. The issue: the Alaskan oil pipeline.

State Department cables reveal that the big oil companies had an ally in the diplomats. "Opponents of the project," State cabled the Canadian government, "have argued that an oil pipeline (in Canada) would be a preferable alternative. In this connection the Department urgently requires your current assessment."

The Canadians cabled their "current assessment," but the State Department refused to forward it to the Senate. Not until Sen. Birch Bayh, D- Ind., threatened to delay floor action on a pipeline amendment did the State Department grudgingly show him the Canadian response.

The State deliberately held back a revision which altered substantially the Canadian position on the proposed Canadian pipeline.

By phone and by letter, the Canadians told the State Department that they did not require 51 per cent ownership in a Canadian oil pipeline, as indicated in their original statement. The State Department did not tell the Congress this, however, until the information was requested one week later by Rep. John Melcher, D- Mont. By that time, the Senate had defeated the key pipeline amendment, which would have required further study of the Canadian route.

The outright lie by omission culminated months of State and Interior Department deceptions concerning the Alaskan alternative-- the Canadian pipeline.

Meanwhile, the oil companies with billions in the Alaska route, were busily shuffling key supporters up to Alaska for a look at the pipeline route and making the rounds on Capitol Hill to collect on old campaign markers.

The powerful lobbying machine, lubricated by big money and big lies, overwhelmed a rag- tag coalition of environmentalists and Midwestern senators.

RED TAPE: After nearly two years, the Interior Department's attempt to shut down a house of prostitution on federal land is still tied in red tape.

In August 1971, we revealed Interior Secretary Rogers Morton is actually the landlord for the Cottontail Ranch, a bordello which pays the government $100 a week rent on a few acres of federal terrain in Nevada.

Morton tried to cancel the lease, but Cottontail's outspoken madam, Beverly Harrell, took her cause to the Board of Land Appeals. There board chairman Newton Frishberg has been considering what he calls "this titillating case" since February 1972, although he quickly adds "the fascination in this case is strictly legal."

At present, the risque ranch is operating under a county license as a place of "amusement, entertainment or recreation."

State to rebid for fuel

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The state will rebid for its gasoline needs on a county-by-county basis rather than a yearly basis, Herbert C. Damron, state director of contracting and procurement, said Friday.

On June 22, the state received only one offer for a statewide supply for a year. There were 136 agencies needing gasoline, fuel oil or propoane gas. Thirty-three companies were invited to bid. The state received bids for 14 locations out of the 136.

Damron said the second set of bid invitations will go out by the end of the month.

The Empire Gas Corp. of Lebanon was awarded a contract at 25.9 cents per gallon for 750,000 gallons of liquified gas for all state institutions. It was the only bid for statewide use submitted on June 22. The per-gallon price for the propane gas was five cents higher than last year.

A contract for fuel oil needs in 10 counties will go to the National Oil Co. of Springfield, with prices varying with delivery routes. The counties are Adair, Buchanan, Cole, Greene, Howell, Nodaway, Phelps, Saline, Stoddard and Webster.

Gulf Oil Co. was awarded a contract to supply gasoline for a year to the St. Louis State School and Hospital at 19 cents a gallon for regular and 23.3 cents for premium.

Gulf also will supply No. 2 diesel fuel for the Missouri School for the Blind at St. Louis at 17.4 cents on 4,000 gallons. Gulf also received a contract for two 55-gallon drums of motor oil at the St. Louis State Hospital at 70 and 72 cents for two grades.

Contracts awarded with escalating clauses for gasoline at various state parks were:

Graham Cave State Park, Montgomery City, Service and Supply Co. of New Florence, 28.7 cents per gallon on 3,000 gallons.

St. Francois State Park, Bonne Terre, Nesbit Oil Co., 29.5 cents on 3,000 gallons.

Van Meter State Park, Miami, Saline County Oil Co., Marshall, 28.6 cents on 4,500 gallons.

Washington State Park, De Soto, Hopkines Oil Co., Cadet, 26.2 cents per gallon on 5,000 gallons.

Big Oak State Park, East Prairie, Lewis Oil Co., 28.6 cents on 2,000 gallons.

Towosahgy State Park, East Prairie, 28.6 cents on 500 gallons.

For No. 2 diesel at Montauk State Park, Franklin Oil Co., Salem, 17.9 cents on 1,000 gallons.

No. 2 at Van Meter State Park, Saline County Oil Co., Marshall, 17.9 cents on 1,000 gallon s.

No. 1 fuel oil at St. Francois State Park, Nesbit Oil Co. 19.5 cents on 1,000 gallons.

Milling conditions are chaotic

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Conditions in the flour milling industry are "chaos — absolutely, unbelievably, stupid chaos," says an industry leader.

R. Hugh Uhlmann, president of Standard Milling Co., said Friday he knew of no mill in the country selling flour now because of the difficulty in buying wheat.

Wheat was priced at $2.74 a bushel June 1-8, and it has risen to $3.15 this week, he explained. At the same time, the millers' prices have been frozen.

Phase 4 will allow food producers to increase prices to match increases in their own costs. But Uhlmann fears the country will run out of wheat by next July unless exports are controlled.

Morton Sosland, editor of the Milling and Baking News, said rising prices hit the bakers hardest.

Prayer for today

from the Upper Room

"We do not know how to pray worthily as sons of God, but his Spirit within us is actually praying for us in those agonising longings which never find words." (Romans 8:26) PRAYER: Lord, how grateful we are for the instrument of communication called prayer. Teach us to make constant use of it, in all the varied ways open to us for talking with You. Amen.

What's the Law?

The case of the constant boozer

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Dick operated on the theory that the safest way to avoid a slip twixt the cup and the lip was to drink straight from the bottle. A chronic alcoholic, he also found it a great time- saver.

When he wandered into a fancy club, however, the maitre d' insisted that he drink from a glass like everybody else. Unfortunately, having been imbibing for some time prior thereto, there was no reasoning with Dick. He was so crocked that to look him straight in the eye required looking at him cross- eyed.

Consequently, when the police finally arrived on the scene, Dick was arrested on charges of public intoxication.

"He was so bombed," the judge was told, "he couldn't lie on the ground without holding on."

"All that may be true," conceded Dick's lawyer in court, "but Dick never intended to break the law. Nor did he intend to get drunk in public. The fact is he's an alcoholic and you can't send a man to jail for that."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you jail Dick for getting pickled in public?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that chronic alcoholism is considered a disease; that to jail someone for having a disease would be cruel and inhuman punishment and in violation of the 8th amendment of the United States Constitution. However, noted the judge, this is not to say that an alcoholic may not be detained for treatment or rehabilitation.

Action to be delayed on judicial revision

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Board of Governors of the Missouri Bar Association will delay action on a proposed revision of the Missouri judicial system until the lawyers can see what the legislature comes up with next year.

The board decided Friday to take no position on a proposed new judicial article of the state Constitution and appointed a committee to meet next Friday in Clayton with a joint legislative committee which will begin hearings on a court reform plan.

The bar association's special committee on court modernization, after a two-year study, has drafted a new constitutional article on the judicial system. It would replace the article adopted in the constitutional convention of 1944.

The revision plan proposes that all courts be abolished except the Supreme Court, appeals courts and the circuit, or trial, courts.

The report recently was revised to include an associate circuit court judge for each of Missouri's 114 counties.

Appropriations for operations and salaries for the new system would be based on recommendations by a commission. Now, each court makes its own budget requests to the governor and the legislature.

The proposal would have the nonpartisan court plan, with appointment by the governor from a nominating commission and then retention by voter approval, extended throughout the state. The plan now is used only for the Supreme Court, the courts of appeal, the St. Louis Court of Criminal Correction and the circuit and probate courts of St. Louis, St. Louis County and Jackson County.

"We are optimistic that they (the legislators) will come up with an article acceptable to the bar," said John Goodwin, St. Louis, president of the state bar association.

"We hope for a resolution to be passed by the legislature for a vote on a constitutional amendment," he said. "We are not committed to an initiative petition drive but it would be the only alternative" if the legislature comes up with a proposal which does not satisfy the bar.

Sisters accept proposal; referendum next step

CAIRO, Ill.— The Sisters of the Holy Cross, owners and operators of St. Mary's Hospital, have informed the City of Cairo they will accept the city's proposal to purchase the facility for about $600,000.

Next step in the proposed purchasing procedure, according to Mayor James Walder, is the scheduling of a city- wide referendum to see if residents wish to raise taxes on property evaluations.

Comptroller Darrell Gustafson said this morning that the tax for the first year would amount to 62 cents on $100 assessed evaluation.

He stressed however, that the amount would decrease on a sliding scale.

The large amount the first year is due to the necessity of raising one year and 10 months of interest payments. After that the accrued interest would allow the tax to decrease.

And both Gustafson and Walder have stressed that the lease payment which the hospital will pay the city yearly has been designed to make the payments on the bonds.

The city, if voters support the issue, will issue general obligation bonding amounting to about $650,000.

The preparation of these bonds and all legal work involved is now under way, Walder said, and will hopefully be completed by Tuesday's City Council meeting.

At that time the council is expected to approve a motion calling for the tax referendum vote.

The major stumbling block at the present, according to Mayor Walder, is the time element.

Sister Mary Alice in informing the city by telephone Thursday of the positive action of the order said that the original schedule of closing the hospital by August 31 would still stand.

Legally, the city cannot call for a referendum until 35 days after action by the council, attorneys have said. That action is expected to come on Tuesday, July 24.

The first date for a referendum, then, would be August 28, only three days before the hospital will close its doors.

Should the referendum be defeated, there is little hope for the future of the hospital unless an alternative proposal is ready.

If the referendum is passed, the Mayor said this morning, the city would have to form a not- for- profit corporation quickly to operate beginning Sept. 1.

The city would hold the hospital in the interim until a working board could be named and assume control.

The mayor said that all 10 precincts in the City of Cairo will be opened for the referendum vote.

He estimated the costs of the entire procedure, including legal work and payment of voting expenses, at between $15,000 and $20,000.

He expressed displeasure at the high expense.

"That money could so much better be used for the hospital directly," he said.

Support for the proposed referendum is growing, even before the vote is formally called by the city.

During Wednesday night's meeting of the Cairo Jaycees, the group of young men voted to support the referendum.

The group also called for the formation of a task force composed of representatives of civic organizations to work actively in support of the referendum.

Other organizations which have expressed formal support are the Cairo Chamber of Commerce and the Pulaski-Alexander Mental Health Association. The Jaycees are expected to approach the Junior Woman's Club and the Cairo Business and Professional Women's Club.

Ann Landers

Daughter is always wanting compliments

Dear Ann Landers: I am in love with Todd and he is in love with me. He's a beautiful person and I know we could have a wonderful life together. My parents hate this man because he is several years my senior and has been divorced three times. I admit his past is nothing to brag about, but his previous wives were selfish and stupid. No woman has ever loved him or understood him as I do.

Next to Todd, the boys at school seem like infants. They bore me silly. I am willing to face the wrath of my family and go away with this man. Please tell me this marriage has a chance--- Different Drummer

Dear Different: You don't want advice. You want approval, and I'm not about to give it.

Often I learn more by the facts omitted from a letter than the facts stated. You avoided telling me Todd's age, or yours. This least me to believe you are at least a generation apart. You failed to mention whether Todd has children. I'll bet he has several living souvenirs from his previous marriages. And I'll bet, too, if you run off with this aging Lothario, within two years you'll be looking for a lawyer and he'll be looking for his fifth.

Dear Ann Landers: Every now and then you print a letter about problems that come up because people didn't make the proper plans in regard to their burial. Here is what happened in our family and I hope somebody will learn from it.

Our beloved mother passed on in 1957. Dad married again in 1961. His second wife started in with that double plot talk immediately after they were married. She nagged him incessantly. Dad agreed to a double plot for him and his second wife so he could get a night's sleep.

Last year our beloved dad suffered a stroke. He died two weeks later. His wife was married within five months. Yesterday we learned from a reliable source that now she is nagging her new husband for a double plot. Our beloved Dad is in HIS half of a double plot and Mom is alone in HER half of a double plot. They are on opposite sides of the cemetery and for us children it is the longest walk in the world.

What should we do?--- Grieving In El Paso

Dear E.P.: Have your father or your mother moved so they are side by side.

Dear Ann Landers: Please tell me what to do with our 16-year- old daughter. Sally is very pretty, has a darling figure, nice personality and a flair for clothes. I am so tired of her continual fishing for compliments that It's getting on my nerves.

Sally asks ten times a day if I think she is pretty, or if her hair looks right. Now she wants to know if I think she is too fat or too thin, or if she should cut her hair or put a blonde streak in it. I try to be honest without giving her a swelled head.

Last night my husband got mad at me. He said, "That kid is too stuck on herself. Why don't you chop her down a little instead of giving her so much praise?"

Is he right? I'd like your views.--- Lexington Mom

Dear Lex: Sally wouldn't be begging for compliments if she weren't so hungry for reassurance.

Why not compliment her without being asked? Such praise is more meaningful. And it will reduce the fishing.

Permit prices in Missouri

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Inflation caught up with hunting and fishing in Missouri as the Conservation Commission announced increases in several permit costs.

The permit fee changes are:

Resident hunting from $4 to $5.50; resident fishing from $4 to $5.50; resident combination from $7.50 to $10; trip fishing from $4 to $5 (the permit will be available both to residents and non-residents in 1974); trout stamp $3 to $4; and resident trapping, $3 to $5.50. There is no change in the 30-cent service charge, the commission said.

"This spiraling inflation has caught us just as it catches individuals on a fixed income," Commission Chairman Robert G. DeLaney of Charleston said. "Our costs have risen to a point where income, which comes almost solely from permit sales, is not enough. We're on a maintenance basis now. Within a short time, if we don't get additional income, Missouri's conservation program will begin to slip.

"The unfortunate thing is that the million permit buyers support the other million or so people who use the Missouri outdoors, but don't buy permits."

Several states, including Wisconsin, Tennessee, Arkansas, Kansas, Mississippi and Oklahoma, sought license increases in 1973, the commission reported.

"If you consider hunting and fishing as entertainment," DeLaney said, "then the permits are a bargain. A hunter or fisherman gets a year's-worth of entertainment for his money for the same price he'd pay for perhaps four hours of entertainment in a football or baseball stadium."

The legislature approved a $12,473,000 budget for the Conservation Commission for the 1973-74 fiscal year, compared with $11.4 million

The Conservation Commission has approved a nine-day gun deer season for 1973. The season will run from Nov. 17 - 25 with several significant changes from the 1972 season. A split archery season was set Oct. 1 - Nov. 16 and Nov. 26 - Dec. 31.

Spike bucks legal in '73

JEFFERSON CITY — The Conservation Commission has approved a nine- day gun deer season from Nov. 17-25 with several significant changes from the 1972 season. Archery season was set Oct. 1-Nov. 16 and Nov. 26-Dec. 31.

The Commission approved an antlered deer season Nov. 17-23 and an any- deer season Nov. 24-25 for management units 2-3-5-7-8-9, and an antlered deer season Nov. 17-25 for units 1-4-6-10.

Unit One is northwest Missouri, Four is west central Missouri, Six is near St. Louis and Ten is the Bootheel area.

The Commission also removed the requirement that antlers must be forked, making spike bucks legal. However, the antler must protrude through the skin to be a legal antler. Button bucks will not be legal.

Archery season was set Oct. 1-Nov. 16 and Nov. 26-Dec. 31. This change from previous requirements means that bowhunters may not hunt during the gun season without a firearms deer permit. He must then observe all regulations applying to the firearms deer hunter.

Similar to last year is the length of the season, the two-days of any deer hunting in some units and the placing of the any- deer segment of the hunt at the end, rather than at the beginning of the season.

The Department of Conservation was pleased with the 1972 season. It was the first season in which only bucks were legal at the start of the season, rather than any- deer. This change resulted in less hunting pressure on antler- less deer and the harvest of does was cut 27 per cent. Fawns produced by a larger number of does will build Missouri's deer herd and make better hunting in future years.

Despite a total harvest of 30,084 in 1972 (down slightly from the all time high of 31,722) the deer biologists see only one problem area. That is Unit Six, near St. Louis, which received a 37 per cent increase in pressure last year. The increase in deer numbers is not keeping pace with the increase in hunters in that area.

In 1972 there were 186,708 gun permit holders plus 21,493 bowhunters, for a grand total of 208,201 licensed deer hunters.

Chiefs picked last

1. Oakland Raiders

The Raiders are better this year than last, and they should put more distance between themselves and the rest of the Western Division. Daryle Lamonica, the Mad Bomber of Alameda County, will return at quarterback, and he is backed up by Ken Stabler, George Blanda (45 years old and 24 years in pro football), and Kan Milan, a surprising free agent. This type of depth continues to running back: Marv Hubbard, Charlie Smith, Pete Banaszak, Clarence Davis, and Bob Hudson, recently acquired from Green Bay. Depth appears also in the offensive line, receiving corps, defensive line, linebackers, and defensive backfield. You say there must be a weakness somewhere? Well, it used to be punting (last in the AFC last season), but the Raiders picked up punter- kicker Ray Guy from Southern Mississippi in the draft. Most experts say if a punt hangs aloft 4.6 seconds, it's a good punt; Guy's kicks hang up there upwards of 5.0 seconds. If there is a weakness on this Oakland club, it has yet to appear, and probably won't until playoff time.

2. San Diego Chargers

Can a coach who reminds one of a Swedish George Allen find happiness with a very expensive, 40- year- old quarterback, a running back who disappears more often than Watergate evidence, and a middle linebacker who eats glass? In two years, Coach Harland Svare has turned the Chargers into Washington Redskins West. Johnny Unitas, the legend in high-top cleats, comes to San Diego this season and to situations he didn't have in Baltimore: (1) a starting job, (2) good runners, and (3) excellent receivers. Duane Thomas has signed a contract and says (and it's a surprise that Duane will say anything) that he intends to run; he'll go well with Mike Garrett, Cid Edwards, and Bob Thomas. The offensive line is solid; it led Garrett to over 1,000 yards rushing last year.

The offensive circus rests upon a semi- solid defense. Coy Bacon, who played with David Jones in Los Angeles, has rejoined the Deacon in San Diego. This improves a good, deep line. The linebackers, including glass-eating eccentric Tim Rossovich, are good but not deep. The secondary is neither good nor deep. Svare is a few trades short here, and the weakness is glaring. The Chargers might not finish this high if this soft spot is not strengthened.

3. Denver Broncos

The Broncos have but once in their life as a team reached the .500 mark for the season; they have always been about five or six people away from those upper reaches of the 8- 6 season. Well, they still are, but they're closer now than they ever were. Their strong ground game of Floyd Little and Bobby Anderson was built up by the addition of Purdue running star, Otis Armstrong. The offensive line is not, however, first rate, and the yards are still going to come hard. A noticeable improvement in the air attack is former Cardinal Charley Johnson at quarterback. The front- line receivers are pretty good too, though their back- ups are a group of unknowns.

Unknowns also play linebacker, cornerback and safety; not only unknown but equally untalented. The pass killed Denver last year, and they will no doubt die by the same hands in '73. The Bronco defensive line, however, is top drawer, and it includes potential superstars Paul Smith, Pete Duranko, and Lyle Alzado. This makes the job of the opposing coach easy: don't bother to run on Denver, just throw. The logic of Coach John Ralston escapes me. His high spots were running back and defensive line, so on what does he use his first two draft choices? Now you know why the Bronco line racks up so many quarterbacks attempting to pass.

4. Kansas City Chiefs

. . .And the first one now shall later be last. . .The old guard dies off and must be replaced by new guard. The Chiefs have stayed static too long, and their drafting has been anything but spectacular. The most depressing thing about the Chiefs, however, is their seeming lack of winning attitude. The thing that impressed me most about Kansas City last season was the difference in this team from the first time they played the Oakland Raiders until the second Oakland game. The first showed the usual K. C.- Oakland personal- vendetta type of play with thousands of Chief fans exhorting their team to make Marv Hubbard of Oakland eat crow. The second game, on the other hand, seemed as if the Chiefs stayed home and sent their wives. The players just didn't seem to care.

The material is still there: Willie Lanier, Emmitt Thomas, Mike Sensibaugh, Jim Marsalis, Otis Taylor, Jim Tyrer, Len Dawson,Ed Podolak, and so on. But this is an illness which is regardless of personnel; it is a cancer which grows within an organization and destroys teamwork. Then come the injuries which no team can afford. Hank Stram had better look to his team's attitude first, and the rest will come much easier, if not by itself.

Aaron hits 699th HR

The pressure on Henry Aaron as the Atlanta great continues his challenge of Babe Ruth's home run record is spreading.

Philadelphia's Bill Robinson leaped high over Atlanta Stadium's seven-foot high fence to rob Dusty Baker of a game-tying home run and preserve the Phillies' 6-4 victory over the Braves Friday night, but aside from his joy about the catch, something else made Robinson happy.

"Gosh, the fans might have killed me if Henry Aaron had hit that ball," Robinson said.

Aaron hit one that no one could catch, a drive into the left-field seats for his 26th home run of the season and the 699th of his career.

In other National League games, the Pittsburgh Pirates swept the San Diego Padres 5-4 in 10 innings and 7-0 in a twi-night doubleheader, San Francisco defeated Chicago 5-4, Cincinnati blanked Montreal, 4-0, Houston defeated the New York Mets 6-2, and the Los Angeles Dodgers edged the St. Louis Cardinals 4-3 in 15 innings.

Pirates 5-7, Padres 4-0

Rennie Stennett hit two home runs and five singles in 10 trips to the plate in leading the Pirates to their sweep. His 10th inning homer decided the first game, handing Mike Caldwell the loss, and his seventh homer of the season in the second game backed the six-hit pitching of Jim Rooker.

Giants 5, Cubs 4

Bobby Bonds doubled twice and scored each time on singles by Garry Maddox to help the Giants make Juan Marichal the winningest active pitcher in baseball. Marichal's eighth victory in 13 decisions was the 235th of his major league career, one more than Bob Gibson of the St. Louis Cardinals.

Astros 6, Mets 2

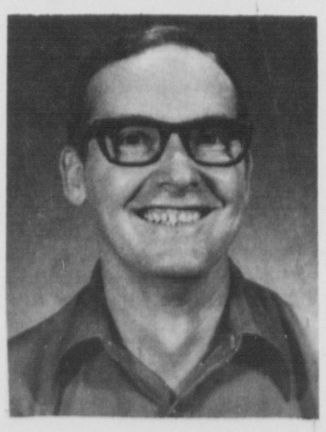

Doug Rader hit two home runs and Cesar Cedeno hit one to power the Astros over the Mets and John Matlack. Matlack, 7-12, had tossed a one-hitter at the Astros just 10 days ago, but Rader's three-run shot in the sixth inning gave the Astros all the runs they needed.

Reds 4, Expos 0

Fred Norman teamed with Pedro Borbon to hold the Expos to five hits in the rain-delayed game. Montreal was able to get a runner to third base in the third and to second in the fifth and seventh, but that was as close as they could come to scoring.

Pitching cools Sikeston bats

SEDALIA, Mo--- Sikeston's Sr. Babe Ruth all-stars fell victim to strong pitching Friday night in the state tournament and were handed their second straight defeat of the event, bowing to Jefferson City 8- 2 in a losers bracket contest.

Gene Robinson scattered four hits to Sikeston and allowed them only two runs while fanning 13 of them during the seven inning contest. His teammates battered three Sikeston hurlers for 10 hits and eight runs.

Jefferson City grabbed a 1-0 lead in the second inning and put the game virtually out of reach with six big runs in the fourth. Sikeston committed four errors in the inning and all runs were unearned.

The loss eliminated Sikeston from the tournament after they suffered a 12- 0 thrashing at the hands of Kansas City Sugar Creek Thursday.

Pitchers rule ML

Pitchers dominated play in the last regular scheduled game of the Musial Little League Friday night as the Daily Standard's Moore blanked Potlatch 12- 0 on a no- hitter and Nunnelee scored a 16- 0 victory over Harts Bread behind the one-hit pitching of Smith. The Standard wrapped up its division title and finished with a 11- 2 record.

The DS played steady ball to which Potlatch could do nothing. Sixteen times at bat were the only things Potlatch had to show for their efforts as they failed to produce any action. Greer led all batting hitting a homerun for the Standard. Green slapped a triple and teammates, Pollard and Rice added doubles. More was the winning and Bell the losing pitcher.

Huff hit a double for the only hit of the game for Harts Bread but the tight defense of Nunnelee and the strong pitching of Smith held off any more such efforts from Harts. Nunnelee's batters brought across 11 big runs to add to their lead to take the win. Smith added a helping hand in the batting department as he slugged out his fifth home run of the year. Buchanan's three hits were all doubles with Jackson and Rickford also adding doubles. Scott suffered the loss.

Jaycees rally

Dial, of Security National, held off the efforts of Lewis Furniture to pitch a 6-5 win while Jaycees romped over Pizza Inn 14-2 in semifinal Friday night.

Lewis Furniture took the lead during the second inning and was not challenged until the fourth when Security National picked up a single run. Both teams added to their score in the following inning and Lewis continued to hold the edge. A last effort was put on by Security National which pulled them through for three runs and the win. Rogers, Dial and Darborek led the hitting department, producing doubles. Lambert, the only extra base hitter for Lewis, also had a double. Wasson was the losing pitcher.

The Jaycees pulled away from a 3-3 tie in the fourth inning to give them the advantage they needed. Scoring seven runs in that inning, and adding four in the next, the Jaycees coasted to an easy win. Burgess added his talents in two departments as he pitched the win and was three for three at bat with one being a double. Davis and Malcolm also had doubles for the Jaycees, with Bedwell hitting a triple. Murphy slapped a double for Pizza Inn's only extra base hit of the game.

Ziegenhorn romps

Ziegenhorn had a 13-3 runaway over First National in the first game of American Little League play Friday night. Ryan squeaked through for a 14-13 win over Sealtest in the nightcap.

A struggle for a chance to score prevailed in the first inning of the opening bout but were effortless. Ziegenhorn came through in the second to blast Garner with eight runs to take the lead. First National failed to score until the fourth but it was too late as Ziegenhorn had run their score to 13 to take the win by the ten- run ruling. Beebee had the only extra base hit of the game which was a double. Anderson was on the mound for Ziegenhorn.

Ryan used the first two innings of the game to take an early lead of 8-0. Adding two runs to it in the fourth seemed to give them an easy advantage but Sealtest rallied for nine big runs and pulled within one of Ryan. The two teams battled for the lead in the following inning as both produced four runs and Ryan won by their early lead. Polley, the winning pitcher, had the only extra base hit for his team, connecting for a double. Schwab, Nelson, and DeCota all had doubles for Sealtest. Schwab had the loss.

The only handicap to hiring me is not knowing where to find me.

You won't find guys like me selling pencils on street corners. We're skilled, able-bodied workers. We're industrial designers. Salespeople. Secretaries. Managers. Accountants. Technicians. Blue collar and white collar.

Unfortunately, though, too many of us are unemployed.

And the irony of it is, it's not that men and women like yourself don't want to hire us. It's simply that you don't know how to go about it.

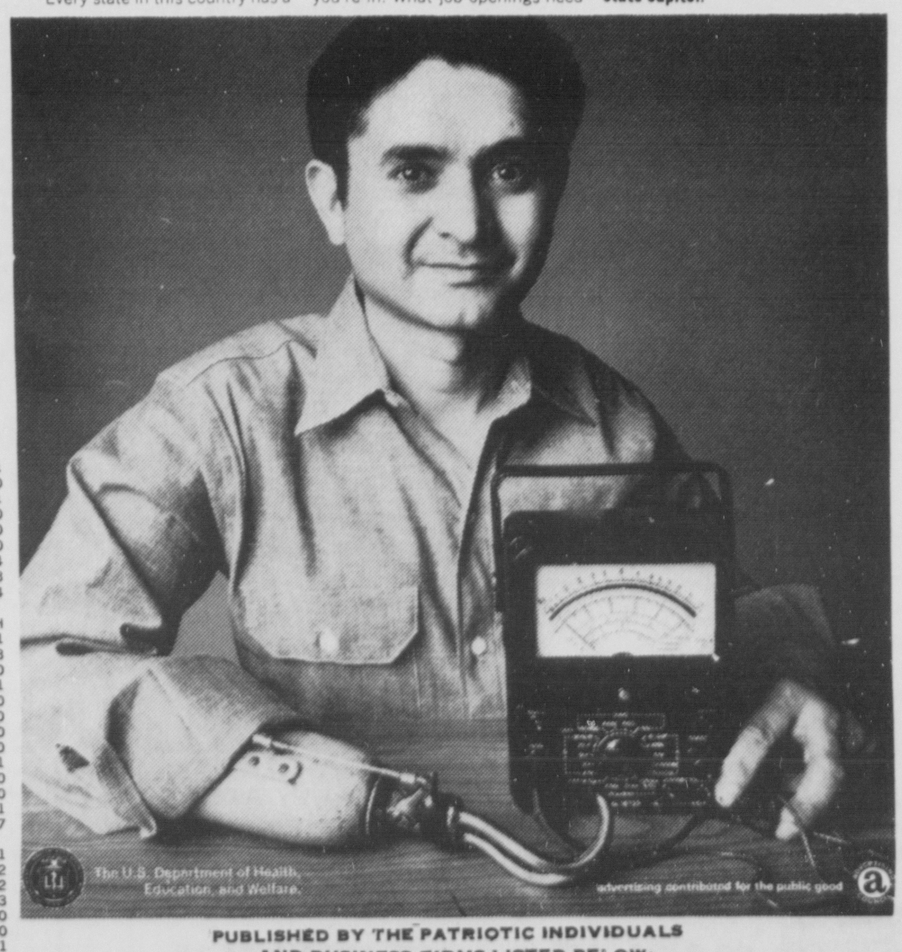

Every state in this country has a Department of Vocational Rehabilitation. Its function is not only to evaluate a person's disabilities and to help him rehabilitate himself. But to help place him in a job that allows him to fulfill his capabilities.

If you are interested in tapping your state's supply of hard-working, capable men and women, write to your State Director of Vocational Rehabilitation. His office is located in your state capital.

Tell him what kind of business you're in. What job openings need to be filled. The background, experience and skills required.

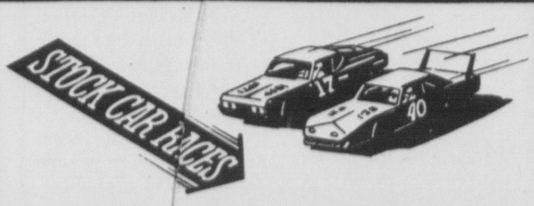

He'll be more than happy to put you in touch with the right people for your company or organization. People who will appreciate the opportunity to help your company grow. Who will work to their fullest potential. And help your company —and our nation—prosper.

Write: Director, State Department of Vocational Rehabilitation at your state capitol.

Pork producers can increase litter size -

COLUMBIA — Pig producers can increase litter size by adding the nutrient choline, a vitamin, to sow rations.

And the cost of the vitamin is low -- just a few pennies for each pig produced per litter.

"Just adding 1.5 pounds of actual choline per ton of feed increased the number of pigs farrowed and raised to weaning weight by an average of 1/2 pig per litter in our North Central regional research project," reported Trygve Veum, University of Missouri - Columbia swine researcher.

"Nutrionally speaking, I haven't seen anything that's had such a dramatic effect on litter size in recent years."

In the experiment station project, litter sizes were increased by feeding 3.1 pounds of choline chloride per ton of feed. This compound contains 50 per cent actual choline, so the animals were getting about 1.5 pounds of the nutrient in each ton of feed.

"Even if this level is higher than it needs to be, we didn't see any point in doing more research to determine the minimum requirement because the choline is so inexpensive," says Veum.

Ironically, the affect of choline on litter size was a surprise finding. Scientists had set out to see if choline would help feet and leg problems at birth. It didn't.

Another irony: choline is found in soybean meal, and soybean meal did make up 18 per cent of the diet fed to all 551 hog litters tested.

Veum explained that the diet may have been deficient in either sulphur amino acids (methionine and cystine) or in choline itself.

If choline is deficient, sulphur amino acids are needed to synthesize choline. So, the animal increases his requirement for sulphur amino acids. That means the animal suffers from a choline deficiency, a shortage of amino acids, or both.

Most of the litters tested in the research project were in Missouri (71) but others were studied in Michigan, Minnesota, Nebraska, Kentucky, Ohio, Wisconsin, South Dakota and Beltsville, Maryland. Hogs in all instances were fed the same corn-soybean ration.

St. Patrick is credited with the origin of leap year.

Timeliness necessary for good weed control

By JOE H. SCOTT
State Extension Agronomist

There is no substitute for timeliness of application if hope to do an effective job of controlling weeds with postemergence herbicides.

This was quite evident to the area agronomists and farm management specialists during a special tour of Dr. Harold Kerr's weed control plots last week to keep abreast of weed control research at the Delta Center.

Very little control of prickly sida could be observed in the plots where postemergence applications were delayed until cotton was six to eight inches tall and weeds were two to four inches. Even with two applications of our recommended herbicides, very little control was evident. However, in adjacent plots were post applications were made when cotton was three inches high and prickly sida was just emerging or under two inches tall excellent control was noted. One application was sufficient in most of these plots.

When weeds get four inches or taller, like in much of our cotton and soybeans this season, it is almost impossible to get control. Our area agronomists get a number of calls concerning crops where weeds are as big as the cotton or soybeans which are 12 inches or taller. In most cases growers want to make an aerial application. With a few exceptions, there is not much area agronomy specialists can do to assist them.

Timeliness not only applies to postemergence herbicide applications but to insecticide applications also. Flernoy Jones, area entomologist at the Delta Center, is urging growers to be on the lookout for boll weevil, as he found weevils working in fields last week.

Cutworms have been damaging soybean crops along the rivers where fields had been flooded earlier. The cutworms have been hard to control, as the cutworms and insecticides must get together to get control. This has been difficult to do due to nature of the worm. A large percentage of the cutworm larvae were approaching maturity last week so we hope our problem as far as this pest is concerned is about over. But with our late crops this season fields will have to be scouted often if hope to apply control measures at the right time.

Out to see the sights

Soybeans, corn or cotton may be the only growing things readily visible in most fields in the Bootheel, but, more often than not, there are several wildlife crops growing in the same field. One of the more common birds in Sikeston area fields is the killdeer. These youngsters were photographed as they wandered away from the mother for a few minutes to see some of the world on their own.

Tour studies weed control

A special tour for area agronomy and farm management specialists was held Friday at the Delta Center in Portageville to observe and discuss weed control research in cotton, soybeans and corn. Kneeling, from left, are Joe Scott, state agronomy specialist; Curt Royster, technician, weed control research; and Dr. Harold Kerr, project leader, Weed Control Research. Standing, T. E. Fisher, agronomy technician; Tom Brown, Stoddard County area agronomist; Dr. George Wright, Pemiscot County area agronomist; E. B. Nace, Delta Center farm management specialist; U. U. Alexander, Dunklin County area agronomist; Sam Atwell, New Madrid County area agronomist; John Garrett, Scott County area agronomist; and Jim Roth, research agronomist.

2 herbicides recommended for soybean weed control

By THOMAS A. BROWN JR.
Area Agronomy Specialist

Numerous requests for information pertaining to post-emergence weed control in soybeans are coming to the University of Missouri Extension Center in Bloomfield. Two herbicides including Dinoseb (Dinitro) and 2,4-DB (Butoxone or Butyrac) are recommended for post- emergence weed control treatments in soybeans, and if properly used, should control most weeds in beans throughout the season.

Dinoseb can be used at two different stages of soybean growth. Fair to good control of a variety of weeds including cocklebur, morning glory, pigweed, ragweed, smartweed, spiny sida, velvetleaf, carpetweed, barnyardgrass, crabgrass, giant foxtail, jimsonweed, lambsquarter and coffeeweed can be expected from this chemical. It will not control fall panicum, johnsongrass, nutgrass, or wild cane.

Dinoseb can be used as an early post- emergence treatment when soybean plants are in the cotyledon stage (first pair of leaves or "seed leaves") but before the first true leaves (second pair) open to expose the terminal bud.

This treatment should be applied only when a flush of weeds comes up shortly after planting, and it can only be expected to control weeds that are up at the time of application.

Crop injury may be expected if the temperature exceeds 85 degrees. If the soybeans do not come up uniformly, varying degrees of injury may be the result.

Dinoseb is also, recommended for use as a post-emergence direct treatment from the time the beans are five inches tall up to first bloom. This treatment will control various annual broadleaved weeds that escape previously- used herbicides. The use of a surfactant mixed with this herbicide will improve its effectiveness. To avoid excessive crop injury, the spray must not be applied higher than one- half the height of soybean plants.

2,4-DB is also recommended for use at two different stages of soybean growth.

2,4-DB can be used as a directed spray when beans are eight to twelve inches tall and weeds are considerably shorter. Fair to good control of cocklebur, morning glory, pigweed, jimsonweed and coffeeweed may be expected from the use of this treatment. This treatment makes it possible to kill some of the broadleaved weeds before they reduce yields seriously by an extended period of competition.

2,4-DB is also recommended as a mid- season post-emergence treatment to be applied from the time the buds start to form up until the mid-bloom stage. This treatment should be used when cockleburn, morning glory, or both will reduce yields. It should be considered as a "salvage operation" as some injury to thee bean crop can be expected.

If the recommended time and rate of application are carefully observed, soybean plants can usually be expected to recover without serious permanent injury. Serious damage will result, however, if this treatment is applied when beans are under stress such as is caused by dry weather.

Several farmers are asking about the use of Dynap as a post- emergence weed control treatment for soybeans. Dynap, also known as Ancrack, is a mixture of naptalam and dinoseb (Alanap and Dinitro). It does not have label clearance for use as a post- emergence treatment. Consequently, it is not recommended for this purpose. When a farmer applies this herbicide as a post-emergence treatment he is doing so at his own risk.

Reports from farmers who have used this treatment indicate that varying degrees of control have been obtained indicating that it is somewhat inconsistent. The control obtained from the use of this treatment is probably due to the dinoseb in the herbicide. As indicated previously, dinoseb does have label clearance and is recommended as a post- emergence weed control treatment when used alone.

Additional information pertaining to post- emergence chemical weed control in soybeans, including recommended rates of application, is available upon request from a county University of Missouri extension center.

Sampling period nearing for fertilizer program

By JOHN GARRETT
Area Agronomy Specialist

Crop producers who plan to use "Plant Tissue and Soil Analysis" to evaluate their fertilizer program are reminded that the sampling period is near.

Leaf Tissue should be removed from growing crops, before grain starts to develop, continues Garrett. Soil samples should be taken at the same time, and in the same area. Once they are collected, samples can be taken to County Extension Center for analysis. Be sure to keep samples clean.

Guidelines on the sampling period for the major field crops grown in the state can be briefly summarized as follows:

Corn can be sampled any time between emergence and pollination. The ideal time is just prior to or during the early tassel stage. Do not sample after the silks have dried.

The ideal time to sample soybeans is when the first bloom appears. However, if problems appear prior to bloom and fertility is suspected as the cause, sampling at the time the problem appears is recommended. Do not sample beans after the first pods start to fill.

Grain sorghums should not be sampled after pollination. The best time for sample collection on sorghums is just after emergence of the head but before pollination.

Cotton cannot be satisfactorily sampled after bolls start to set. As the first blooms appear is a good time, but the crop can be sampled earlier in problem situation.

The reason for the above deadlines on sampling is fairly simple, but it is important. During the early stage of development, or growth cycle, nutrients are concentrated in the leaf tissue. When the reproductive cycle sets in, translocation or movement of the nutrients, from the leaves to the developing grain, or seed begins. This reduces the concentration of nutrients in the leaf tissue. Analysis does not give an accurate picture, of the nutrient situation.

Selecting leaf tissue from the proper part of the plant and proper handling after collection are also important. However, sample collection is not complicated or difficult. Step by step instructions are available at Extension Centers in MU Guide 9131 or contact your local Area Agronomy Specialist.

Samples submitted for plant tissue and soil analysis last summer indicate that there is wide variation in the fertility picture. Nitrogen, phosphorous, and potassium shortages were the most common deficiencies. In most cases this reflected the use of the wrong analysis, rather than the use of too little fertilizer. This suggests that regular use of plant tissue soil analysis can contribute to more efficient use of the fertilizer dollar, and possibly set the stage for better yields.

Micro- nutrient deficiencies do not appear to be a major problem, although they do occur in some situations. While they are not widespread, they cannot be entirely discounted. To date, analysis of plant tissue is generally accepted as the best way to pinpoint micro-nutrient problems.

County farmers urged to carry out pledge

NEW MADRID — New Madrid County farmers who have certified compliance with 1973 farm program requirements are reminded to continue to carry out their commitment for the remainder of the year.

Bernard Recker, chairman of the county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation (ASC) committee, says that all farmers in New Madrid County had certified compliance with this year's farm program by the July 13 deadline.

Certification amounts to a pledge by the farmer as to his program acreage, his acreage set aside from production, if any, and that he has complied with all program provisions, Recker said.

Recker pointed out that following certification, certain farms are picked at random for a spot check of program acreages. The accuracy of the certification is determined by comparing actual acreage with those certified by the producer. Recker warned that producers found out of compliance could lose all or part of their program payment. Spot checks will continue throughout the remainder of the year.

Reports compiled from other areas indicate that some producers have failed to meet the minimum size and shape requirements of setaside acreage and are subject to loss of payments, Recker said.

He also reminded producers who want to graze or hay set-aside acreage that they must notify the county ASCS office before the acreage is grazed or hayed.

Recker added that if a producer feels he does not understand the rules for set-aside acreage, he should contact the county ASCS office immediately.

FORECAST

No forecasts were available for Ohio River stations.

Conservation of America's natural resources is not a new concern. The following statement by President Theodore Roosevelt appeared in the 1909 World Almanac: "There is no other question now before the nation of equal gravity with the question of the conservation of our natural resources . . . and so to handle the great sources of our prosperity as not to destroy in advance all hope of the prosperity of our descendants."

Something of the past

Old barns and windmills lend a flavor of nostalgia to most viewers nowadays. Many barns are still in use but only a few of the water- pumping windmills are used because of the ease and reliability of electric pumps. The nostalgia of windmills may give way to a new trend inspired by the much talked about energy crisis. Some people are now using specially designed windmills to generate enough electricity to completely power their homes.

3-6 years to completion on 57 bridge

CAIRO, Ill. — Construction of the substructure for the Interstate 57 bridge at Cairo is slightly over one- third completed, but it will probably be between three and six years before the birdge over the Mississippi River will be open for traffic.

The substructure calls for a total of 16 piers — six land piers on the Illinois side, five in the river and five on the Missouri side.

"Every one of the piers is either under construction or completed," Ole V. Krasts, project manager for Al Johnson Construction co. of Minneapolis, Minn., the firm which holds the $10.5 million contract, said.

All six piers on the Illinois bank and four of the five Missouri side piers are completed. The other piers are in various stages of construction, he said.

Three caissons and two box cofferdams are being used for construction of the piers in the river. One box cofferdam has been driven and the other is being constructed. One caisson is under study while work is progressing on the other two.

Work on the substructure got under way in March 1972. After a delay of six to seven months because of fall and winter weather and spring floods, work resumed June 18.

"Based on past records, we had expected about three idle months, but instead experienced six or seven months of delay," Krasts said. "The delay is certainly going to show up somewhere along the way."

Originally, the Illinois Department of Transportation had estimated that the bridge could be open for traffic by 1976, but that it might take until 1978 — three years for construction of the substructure and the same amount of time for the superstructure.

Krasts said his company hopes to have its work completed by December 1974 or January 1975. Once the substructure is completed, the superstructure could be finished in as little as two years or it could take three years, he said.

A contract for work on the superstructure is expected to be let sometime late this year.

Besides causing a delay, the spring flood did some other damage to the bridge construction project.

"Some material and equipment were damaged by the floodwaters," the project manager said. "Also during the flood, a tow hit a caisson, doing extensive damage to the breakwater and damaging the cell — the sand island surrounding the caisson."

Based on the results of a study of soil conditions in the locations where caissons are to be pounded, work has temporarily stopped on one caisson in the river. The results show the soil at the one location is not as hard as the original borings indicated and that the caisson will probably have to be lowered about 10 feet deeper.

The new bridge, a joint project by Illinois and Missouri, will provide the final link of I-57, spanning almost the entire length of Illinois and to Sikeston in Missouri where it terminates at Interstate-55.

The design for the bridge consists of four concrete traffic lanes, providing two lanes of traffic in each direction, separated by a barrier median. The structure, when completed, will be 4,100 feet long.

Nixon determined to resume pace

CAMP DAVID, Md. (AP) — President Nixon, here for the weekend, seems determined to prove that a week's hospitalization did not slow his work pace.

Although his doctors said they expected him to rest today and Sunday following his recovery from viral pneumonia, the White House made a point of announcing he came to his mountain retreat Friday afternoon with a briefcase filled with paper work.

For good measure, a busy Monday-through-Thursday schedule for next week was released.

After leaving the Bethesda Naval Medical Center Friday, Nixon told aides and employes who welcomed him back to the White House that he would be working "right up the hilt all the time" despite his recent illness.

For those who might suggest a full schedule would endanger his health, Nixon had this message: "The health of a man is not nearly as important as the health of the nation and the health of the world."

Nevertheless, an unusually large medical contingent was at Camp David today with Nixon. Normally he is accompanied by a single physician, but this time two doctors—Walter R. Tkach and William Lukash—plus a medical corpsman and medical secretary were on hand.

Tkach is the President's personal physician and normally relegates Camp David chores to an assistant.

After spending about 4½ hours Friday at the White House, devoting part of the time to staff meetings, Nixon took a meandering drive here through the Virginia and Maryland countryside with C.G. "Bebe" Rebozo, his friend and neighbor from Key Biscayne, Fla.

As Nixon's limousine neared the Camp David gate, he ordered it halted and got out to greet 13 hiking Girl Scouts and their two counselors.

"Hey, President," one of the youngsters called to him, "are you going to be on TV?"

Nixon explained he had just gotten out of the hospital but that they need not worry because viral pneumonia is not contagious.

After reaching his quarters at Aspen Lodge, Nixon ordered the delivery of several pecan pies to the girls, who are spending two weeks at a Girl Scout camp on Catoctin Mountain.

The White House said the meeting with the girls was pure happenstance and that, in view of the lengthy roundabout drive Nixon made, there would have been no way to plan the meeting near the Camp David gate.

An Associated Press reporter had been tipped earlier in the day that some youngsters would be on hand when Nixon reached his retreat.

Officials to watch for soybean ease

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Department officials will watch closely next week for signs of an easing of the soybean supply crunch which might make it possible for more of the oilseed and meal to be exported.

One signal will come Tuesday when USDA issues a quarterly report of the country's grain and oilseed on hand as of July 1. It will include comparative figures of last year's supplies.

The administration last month announced export curbs on soybeans, meal and other protein sources in an attempt to conserve supplies for U.S. livestock raisers until the new crops are harvested next fall.

But Japan and the European Community (Common Market) are big soybean buyers and have been voicing sharp objections to the cutbacks.

Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz told a news conference Thursday that there have been some signs that U.S. consumption of soybeans has not been as large this summer as originally thought.

Butz was asked to comment on reports that Secretary of State William P. Rogers and other administration officials had indicated to Japan this week that more soybeans might be available to it before the 1973 crop is harvested.

"Secretary Rogers did assure them that a good supply of soybeans would be forthcoming," Butz said. "I am not sure he assured them that they would get more out of this year's allocation.

"But there is some evidence that it will be possible to increase the allocation of soybeans for export out of the old (1972) crop beyond the present rules."

The possibility of increasing soybean export allocation "is under discussion now," Butz added. He also said there are indications that soybeam crushing plants have not been operating at full capacity during the past few weeks.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Trading in agricultural commodities soared to record volumes and dollar values in the year ended June 30, says the Agriculture Department.

According to a report by the department's Commodity Exchange Authority, trading in 21 commodities regulated by the federal agency totaled 17.8 million transactions worth an estimated $268.3 billion.

That compared with 12.6 million contracts valued at $148 billion in 1971-72. Four commodities — corn, cattle, live hogs and eggs in shell — reached record trading, the report said.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department has allocated $62,000 to Texas A&M University for a two-year study of Venezuelan equine encephalomyelitis, or sleeping sickness, which threatened horses nationally two years ago.

The disease, commonly referred to as VEE, was stopped by massive vaccination campaigns but not until it had killed thousands of horses in Texas. The research grant will be used to determine whether domestic animals other than horses can contract VEE or be virus carriers, officials said.

ARTIST NEVER SEES THE LIGHT

AMAGANSETT, N.Y. (AP) – Seventy-year-old Lucia Wilcox isn't letting a little thing like blindness interfere with her career as an artist.

Since she lost her sight, she has drawn pictures with a felt-tipped pen. Her lines are flowing and many of her compositions are intricate in detail. Well-known as a regional artist before she went blind, her work since then has been notable enough to rate an exhibition.

Dealers dispute wheat testimony

WASHINGTON (AP) — Four grain dealers have disputed testimony by Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz that his department did not know last summer the extent of the impending $1 billion wheat sale to the Soviet Union.

The senior vice president of Continental Grain Co., the world's largest, said he personally notified the Agriculture Department of the sale on July 3, 1972—three days before it was consummated.

Butz declined comment after the dispute arose Friday during hearings before the Senate investigations subcommittee. He is scheduled to testify Monday.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., chairman of the subcommittee, has questioned whether the Agriculture Department knew or suspected that the Soviet Union, because of crop failures, would seek to buy wheat from American companies.

The issue is a key one in the investigation. American farmers could have made millions of dollars had they known that exports would increase both the demand and price for wheat.

The issue was raised last Sept. 14 when Butz appeared before a House Agriculture subcommittee.

"I emphaize that nobody knew then (during the first week of July)—neither the Department of Agriculture nor the trade—just how much the Russians would buy," Butz testified. But Bernard Steinweg, the Continental senior vice president, testified Friday that on July 3, he met with Carroll G. Brunthaver, assistant secretary of agriculture and told him about the deal.

"I told him we had been contacted by the Russians, told him the specific amounts of wheat (4.5 million tons) they wished to purchase from us, and told him they wished to purchase (3 million tons of) corn from us ...," Steinweg said.

Steinweg said he telephoned Brunthaver on July 6 to inform him that the sale of four million tons of wheat had been consummated.

Brunthaver is on vacation and could not be reached for comment on Steinweg's statement. He is scheduled to testify Monday.

In testimony before a House Agriculture subcommittee last September, Brunthaver said he received phone calls from four grain companies "sometime after the Russian agreement was announced on July 8."

In affidavits submitted to the Senate subcommittee:

—Patrick J. Gardner Jr., vice president of Louis Dreyfus Corp., said he met personally with Brunthaver on July 8, and said it was apparent that "the Russians were interested in buying a large quantity of wheat."

—Carl C. Brasmer, vice president of Bunge Corporation, said that on July 7 he talked with William K. Rosacker of the Agriculture Department.

"I explained to him that I was calling from the Russians' hotel suite in New York City and that they had expressed an interest in buying wheat. I further stated that the quantity would be large ...," Brasmer said.

—Melvin H. Middents, vice president of Cargill, Inc., said he consulted with Brunthaver while Cargill's July 10 sale of wheat was being negotiated "and in a period of time following each sale."

Persons over 65 can now receive deductions

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — A bill allowing persons over 65 to receive state income tax reductions was signed into law today by Gov. Christopher S. Bond.

The bill allows the Revenue Department to begin Oct. 1 making up the tax relief schedules. It could affect about 300,000 Missourians next April at income tax time but legislative researchers say only about 145,000 will take part.

Bond signed the bill just before making a speech to the concluding session of the state American Legion convention, which represented a good number of elderly persons.

The tax relief measure was approved on the last day of the legislature session June 15. It was called for by the people a year ago when they passed a constitutional amendment.

Bond estimated the loss to the state in income taxes the first year will be $13 million, and $16.7 million the second year.

Persons earning less than $7,500 a year will be eligible. No more than $400 in property taxes can be used in figuring the formula. Eighteen per cent of the annual rent would be equal to the property tax bill.

The amount of property taxes or rent will be computed only on the place of residence.

Basically, the bill allows a state income tax credit equal to the difference between property taxes and a percentage of the annual income.
